

IUU – Guide for Irish Importers

1.0 Background

Illegal, Unreported and Unregulated fishing (IUU) encompasses unauthorised fishing and all fishing activities that are a serious breach of national, regional or international rules. IUU fishing remains the biggest global threat to the sustainable management of fish stocks. A study done recently in the UK estimated that IUU fishing costs between $10 and $24 billion, across the world each year – equivalent to nearly 20% of the worldwide reported value of catches. The EU has therefore introduced a new regulation to prevent, deter and eliminate the import of IUU fishery products into the Community. This legislation came into force on 1st January 2010. Regulation No 1005/2008 creates new requirements on fish and fisheries products entering the EU market from third countries (non-European Union).

All importers will need to take steps to ensure the goods they import have been legally caught, and that his export partner provides a validated catch certificate for every consignment.

The new requirements under IUU do not alter or affect the existing veterinary import rules

1.1 This guidance note covers:

1.2 Who Does What?

Sea Fisheries Protection Authority (SFPA) will be responsible for;

- Authorising and conducting inspections on landings by third country fishing vessels.
- Validation of Irish Catch Certificates by Irish vessels landing to non EU Countries.
- Validation of Irish catch certificates for all exports, where Irish catch certificates are required and the re-export section of catch certificates from third country landings.
- Validation of Pre Notification of Consignments of Fishery Products documents.
- Verification of third country catch certificates for imports into Ireland.

For further information see the SFPA IUU webpage at;

Department of Agriculture Fisheries and Marine (DAFM) will be responsible for;

- Examining consignments of fishery imports at border inspection posts (BIP's)

2.0 The Catch Certificate Explained

With a number of exceptions all seafood caught on or after 1 January 2010 which is being imported into the EU will now require a catch certificate.

If you are an importer, or agent acting on behalf of an importer, it is your responsibility to ensure that all your imports of fish and fisheries products are accompanied by a validated catch certificate(s). There are some exceptions to this rule. A validated catch certificate is not required when:

- The fish was caught before 1 January 2010, even if it is imported into the Ireland after this date. However, where appropriate, Irish authorities may ask importers to provide documentary evidence that the catch was made prior to 1 January 2010.
- The goods to be imported fall outside the commodity groups described by Chapter 3 and outside Tariff Heading 1604 and 1605 of the Combined Nomenclature (CN). These are the internationally recognised "Customs Codes" that are used to designate the nature of goods and merchandise;
- The fishery products are included in Annex 1 of EC Regulation 202/2011 which replaces Annex 1 of 1005/2008 and revokes Annex XIII of Commission Regulation 1010/2009.

2.1 Responsibilities of the Importer

- To obtain a validated catch certificate(s) from the exporter of the products.
- To complete the Importer Declaration at section 11 of the catch certificate, sign and stamp it.
- To obtain additional documents if your consignment is routed through another third country, or processed in a third country other than the flag state of the catching vessel.
- To submit a completed "Pre Notification of Consignments of Fishery Products Document", this should be submitted to the IUU Office of the Sea Fisheries Protection Authority for verification with the Catch Certificate*.
- To submit all documentation pertaining to the import to Sea Fisheries Protection Authority within the deadlines for prior notification – for sea freight this is a minimum of three working days before estimated time of arrival, and for air freight a minimum of four hours before estimated time of arrival but the SFPA would advise maintaining the 3 working days period to prevent any delay in the products gaining release at Border Inspection Posts.

It is acceptable for an importing agent to submit a catch certificate on behalf of an importer and complete section 11 of the catch certificate.

* The Pre Notification of Consignments of Fishery Products document can be found on the SFPA Web page:

2.2 Re-exports from Ireland

If you or another operator intends to re-export fishery products previously imported into Ireland which have not been processed in any way, the re-export section of the original catch certificate will need to be completed and validated by the SFPA Office with responsibility for the local area where the exporter of the fishery product(s) is based. ## 2.3 The Format of the Catch Certificate

EC IUU Certificate - standard

The format of the standard catch certificate is laid down in Annex II of the Regulation 1005/2008. Third countries will produce their own certificates but these must contain all the information listed on the EC catch certificate template, so they are likely to be similar in general appearance. Catch certificates must be in one of the official Community languages. It would be in the importers interest to ensure catch certificates are in English to avoid any delays in the import process.

EC Bilateral Agreements with third countries – country specific

A number of countries including Norway, Iceland, USA, Canada, New Zealand and the Faroe Islands have signed bilateral agreements with the European Commission to use their own control and traceability systems to generate and confirm the information provided on catch certificates. This includes specific formats for the catch certificates; they will still contain all of the relevant sections as laid down in Annex II of the Regulation 1005/2008.

Other catch certificate schemes

The European Commission has approved a number of catch certificate schemes of Regional Fisheries Management Organisations (RFMO's) which may be accepted as an alternative to the standard IUU catch certificates.

2.4 Approved Third Countries

The European Commission has asked all third countries (flag states) to provide a formal notification of its competent authorities that will be implementing this regulation (i.e. validating the catch certificates). Imports from third countries that do not provide this notification, or whose notification is deemed insufficient by the European Commission, will not be permitted EU entry. Importers are strongly advised to ensure they know the nationality of the vessels which provide the fish to be imported, and that these countries are on the European Commission's web page.

2.5 Formalities for Product Clearance

- Verification of IUU compliant catch certificate(s) and all other relevant import documents by SFPA IUU Office.
- Verification of Importers Pre Notification Document by SFPA IUU Office.
- BIP Staff will need to conduct species and weights checks, included on catch certification and Pre Notification documents.
- Conduct all veterinary inspection procedures on imported product.
